Smaller Getters

- Getters can invoke other getters. We can delegate smaller bits of logic to lightweight getter functions.

- Think about how you can break up multiple responsibilities in a function. We do not have to use a getter in a component for it to be useful.

Getters with Arguments

- We can provide additional arguments to a getter by having the getter method return a function. The function can accept whatever arguments we'd like.

- When we invoke the getter in a component, we pass arguments to it as if we're passing them to the returned function.